WE FIND WHAT WE CHOOSE TO LOOK FOR

Website: ellingtonlibrary.org

We need to find a balance between what we know and what we see. What we know is our history. We draw from what we have seen before and what we have experienced. That history drives our choices today in so many ways. What we don't know is new and unfamiliar, and that is where direct observation — concentrated looking — comes into play. We see it, incorporate it, and interpret it. We add that new information to the memory we already have and out comes a different version.

As an artist, direct observation and memory are the two tools which are used to create a plein air painting. "En plein air," is the French expression for "in the open air." Plein air painting is about leaving the four walls of your studio behind and experiencing painting and drawing while outside and in the landscape. The artist looks at the barn, and then puts paint on the canvas, then back to the barn, and back to the canvas, over and over again until they're done. When the artist sees another barn, they will know that it is indeed a barn and not a frog. But for the artist, it is valuable to try to retain as much of this memory as possible for the future. We must build our memories; they make up the visual ingredients we cram into our brains. The next time the artist looks at a building they can reliably identify it as a barn because of the memory stored in the brain from the last painting session. To make a painting of this barn unique they have to be willing to observe, to really look and find the differences between this barn and the last one.

When we go to a library, what are we looking for? Are we entering with eyes wide open or with preconceived notions of what we may think is there? Many people have memories of visiting a library when they were young. It might be years later and well into adulthood when they again walk into a library and they draw from that earlier historic memory. They think it might be a quiet place with musty books all lined up according to a number system that they may have found hard to understand as a child.

I challenge you to observe, to really see what presently goes on in libraries. We are not the institutions of many years ago. Libraries change and are responsive to the culture and to the communities they serve. We all offer free access to information to everyone. We serve up that access in many different ways. No longer do we offer just a variety of printed books. You will find audio books. sensory play, educational games, high speed internet, art, technology and programming to meet many people's lifestyles. Not all libraries have all of these things as they are dependent on varied budgets and available funding. If you take the CCLS Library Passport challenge and visit many of our libraries this summer you'll come away with a new appreciation of the ways that libraries are reaching their community. I challenge you to go into each of the 38 libraries, or as many as you can, with open eyes and an observant attitude. Don't just rely on your memory of libraries from your childhood. Really see what we have to offer and you'll come away with a unique scene of the library as it is today. Remember to take your children on this road trip and let them see with new eyes and make their own library memories.

Pick up your map and a passport at any library and start out on the "Lovin' Our Libraries Road trip" this summer. Get out of your four walls studio, look and really see so you can add some present day insight into your history and make some new library memories for the future!

ADULT BOOK CLUB MONTHLY SELECTION

The Adult Book Club usually meets the third Thursday of every month at 11am. This month instead of their usual meeting, they will be listening to a tag team of two local authors; William Walsh and Stephen Corey, speak on the creative writing process. This program is open to the public and you don't have to be a member of the Book Club to attend.

LIBRARIES & GLASSES - GREAT COMBINATION!

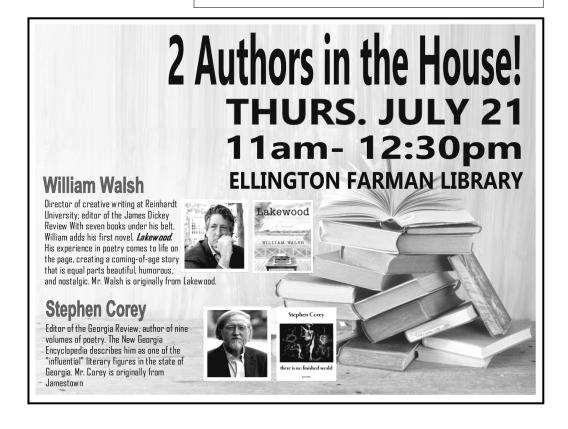

Did you know the library has a box for the Frewsburg Lions Club Eyeglass Recycling Program? It is located next to the newspaper table.

An estimated 120 million people are visually impaired because of uncorrected refractive errors (far and near sightedness). Almost all cases can be corrected and normal vision can be restored with eyeglasses, contact lenses or refractive surgery. The lack of eyeglasses denies children and adults opportunities for education, employment and a better quality of life.

- 1. Lions and Leos collect used eyeglasses at various community locations.
- 2. The glasses are shipped to the nearest Lions Eyeglass Recycling Center where trained volunteers sort, clean and determine the prescription strengths of the glasses.
- 3. Volunteers at the recycling center carefully package the prepared glasses and store them until they are required for eye glass dispensing missions.

Donate your used glasses, including sunglasses and reading glasses, to the library and we'll make sure they get to a local Lions Club. Make a clear difference in someone's life!

THE LIBRARY BOARD OF TRUSTEES MEETS ON THE LAST MONDAY OF EACH MONTH IN OUR COMMUNITY ROOM AT 7PM. These meetings are open to the public.

Book Highlights of the Month

ADULT FICTION: THE WOMAN IN THE LIBRARY, BY SULARI GENTILL

GENRE MYSTERY

"Investigations are launched, fingers are pointed, potentially dangerous liaisons unfold and I was turning those pages like there was cake at the finish line."

-Moira Macdonald. Seattle Times must-read books for summer 2022

Ned Kelly award winning author Sulari Gentill sets this mystery-within-a-mystery in motion with a deceptively simple, Dear Hannah, What are you writing? pulling us into the ornate reading room at the Boston Public Library.

In every person's story, there is something to hide... The tranquility is shattered by a woman's terrified scream. Security guards take charge immediately, instructing everyone inside to stay put until the threat is identified and contained. While they wait for the all-clear, four strangers, who'd happened to sit at the same table, pass the time in conversation and friendships are struck. Each has his or her own reasons for being in the reading room that morning—it just happens that one is a murderer.

Sulari Gentill delivers a sharply thrilling read with The Woman in the Library, an unexpectedly twisty literary adventure that examines the complicated nature of friendship and shows us that words can be the most treacherous weapons of all.

ADULT FICTION: NEVER PLEASING TO THE WORLD: A MAN AND HIS SLAVES By Peggy Patterson Garland GENRE: HISTORICAL FICTION

Born into the richest planter family in the Northern Neck of Virginia, Robert Carter III's life is anything but typical. A neighbor of George Washington and the Lees of Stratford Hall, Carter is destined to be a gentleman farmer, slaveholder, and leader in the church, militia, court, and government. Carter has no idea that one day he will rebel against everything he is taught.

While growing up, he spends time with his best friend and personal slave, Sam Harrison, who provides him with a first-hand look into his less than ideal life. After Carter comes of age, he escapes to London where he encounters the Enlightenment. At age twenty-three, he returns home to take over his eighteen plantations and live a productive life. But as a chain of events drives him to chart new territory for his time, Carter is ultimately led to make a decision that shocks and alienates his class and his family and forever changes the lives of over five hundred people.

Never Pleasing to the World is the story of how a child of privilege, influenced by slaves long before the Civil War, creates a community of freed slaves in the most powerful state in the South.

JUNIOR FICTION: LIFELING BY KIRSTY APPLEBAUM for ages 8-12

With a premise that asks big questions about the value of an individual life, Applebaum's (The Middler) earnestly told novel conveys messages of love, loyalty, and sacrifice. Twelve-year-old Lonny Quicke is a lifeling—a person who can revive dying animals and people, in exchange for a shortened existence. To protect him from the powerful, potentially lethal pull of dying humans, Lonny's white-presenting family—his cantankerous grandfather, worried widower father, and younger brother Midge—remain near their secluded forest home, relying on the little money Lonny's father makes fixing watches. But when food becomes scarce for the family, Lonny and Midge risk going into nearby Farstoke to earn money. Watching preparations for an annual festival that celebrates the mythology of lifelings' sacrifices upends the siblings' understanding of Lonny's power and puts the boy on a path to possible disclosure and difficult decisions about responsibility. Applebaum builds tension from the start, describing the "buzzing" Lonny feels when a nearby creature is dying, detailing Farstoke's obsession with lifelings, and building toward a message that balances hope and reality, while developing a believable narrator with deep bonds and longing.

JULY DISPLAY CASE: Kennedy Crafters with Vintage Kitchen items

The Kennedy Crafters are at it again! They are in charge of the July Display Case and they have a fun, participatory theme lined up for us. This time their display is vintage kitchen gadgets and more. After looking high and low in their homes they found a wide variety of items, many of which belonged to family members through the years. Most of the items were used primarily in the kitchen, but some may have been used elsewhere in the house. All month long patrons can participate in a guessing game concerning the items in the case. Pick up your game paper on the table in the community room. See how many of the display items you can either name or describe what their purpose was. Turn in your answer sheet by July 30th. The patron who has the most correct answers will win a special gift basket with items and cookbooks related to the theme.

Our wish is that this unique display case will bring back fond memories of your parents or grandparents as they made a "little magic in the kitchen"!

We thank the following members of the Kennedy Crafters for their contributions to this display:

Brenda Frazier Dawn Russell Cathy Honey Gloria Britton Diane Crandall Gail Crawford
