THE POWER OF SUGGESTION

What is a suggestion? It is a psychological term for guiding thoughts, beliefs, and feelings. The suggestion involves bringing your thoughts and perspective into play to solve or advance a course. The power of suggestion describes how people take the ideas given to them and turn them into reality. People often harness the power of suggestion to give people ideas about solutions to their problems or live a better life.

I think the part of that definition that we'll work with today is where we use suggestions to advance a course of action and turn our patron's ideas into reality for this community. A suggestion box at the circulation desk is a good way to get started. I regularly have patrons suggest authors they think our library should carry on our shelves. When books are returned I'll sometimes ask the patron what they thought of a debut author and I'm almost always rewarded with an honest opinion. I can't read all the books that get ordered for the library so I have to rely on reviews from reputable journals. Then the book is measured by how well the topic would be received with the patrons in our community. I like to take chances and bring in new authors every month while keeping the favorite authors' books coming in regularly too. In the end, though, it is a guessing game where the number of checkouts proves whether the guess is correct or not. After being here for almost 8 years I can safely say that book ordering is an educated guess but still there's a chance a new book does not hold as much interest as I'd hoped.

This library tends to place a huge emphasis on programming. With no community center in Ellington we try to provide programs and events for all ages on a variety of topics. Our patrons seem to enjoy the major topics of history, nature, health, wellness and crafts. Here comes the suggestion part. Starting this summer there will be a suggestion box in the library where you can write down any ideas for programs, books or just a topic you might find interesting and would like us to pursue. Suggestions have the power to give us multiple streams of ideas. They can offer us a new perspective we haven't thought of before. When we gather suggestions, we learn new things in the process. I hope to learn what community members find interesting and would like to see offered in our library.

"I think the library should turn itself into a space ship so we can all read on the moon." To be absolutely truthful that might be a suggestion we can't literally pursue. We might, though, be able to keep the intent of it which is reading on the moon. If someone has an interest in that we can look at offering programs on the topic of outer space. Books can be ordered on astronomy and a craft on making spaceships might be doable. There's a lot of possibilities we can kick around on that topic.

So when you see our suggestion box out on the desk please feel free to use it. I promise we'll read every slip of paper in the box. No matter how simple a suggestion might look, it won't be seen if we don't look for it and ask for them. We are open to seeing different ways of doing things. We can respond to suggestions by creating new strategies and try out new directions and possibilities. I'm excited to see what the community is interested in. Who knows? In 100 years we might be ordering books to be sent to the moon!

The Ellington Farman Library Board of Trustees meets on the last Monday of each month with exception of December. Meetings begin at 7:00 p.m. The Public is welcome to attend. Agenda & documents to be discussed at the monthly meeting can be requested from the library 24 hours prior to the open meeting at which the documents will be discussed.

Book Highlights of the Month

ADULT FICTION: THE BANDIT QUEENS BY PARINI SHROFF

Categories: LITERARY FICTION | FAMILY LIFE & FRIENDSHIP

Filled with clever criminals, second chances, and wry and witty women, Parini Shroff's The Bandit Queens is a razor-sharp debut of humor and heart that readers won't soon forget.

Bonds of sisterhood are forged through murders. When Geeta's husband, Ramesh, disappeared from their Indian village five years ago, he left her saddled with debt and the lingering rumor that she murdered him. Geeta simultaneously resents her dubious reputation, wields it to scare local children into compliance, and uses it to make up for her loneliness: "She wasn't respected here, but she was feared, and fear had been very kind to Geeta." Then Farah—a member of the microloan club Geeta belongs to along with fellow female entrepreneurs—has a proposal. Would Geeta help her remove her proverbial nose ring by murdering her abusive husband? While hesitant at first, Geeta ultimately agrees. But, of course, this murder does not go smoothly. From there follow a series of betrayals, the uncovering of an underground alcohol trade, and more murder proposals. Some of Shroff's attempts to insert serious discussions of abuse, misogyny, and class throughout the novel feel awkward, and the story could have used some editing (perhaps one less murder?). Still, if you can lean into the melodramatic slapstick nature of it all—villainous characters who pause midvillainy to explain that their nicknames are works in progress; characters who pause mid-hostage situation to wish each other a Happy New Year—the novel will reward you with occasional witty one-liners, tender moments of deep female friendship, and salient truths: "Because we're middle-aged housewives. Who's more invisible than us? We can get away with murder. Literally." Readers will appreciate—if not quite be riveted by—this tale of the strength of women in impossible situations.

ADULT NON FICTION: HOMEGROWN; TIMOTHY MCVEIGH AND THE RISE OF RIGHT-WING EXTREMISM BY JEFFREY TOOBIN

A riveting account of the man behind the 1995 Oklahoma City bombing and the legacy of his actions, which reverberate today. Bestselling author Toobin describes Timothy McVeigh (1968-2001) as "the most thoroughly scrutinized criminal in American history." Taking advantage of interviews, tapes, and correspondence that run to more than 1 million pages, the author scours his subject's early life to create a portrait of a somewhat troubled but hardly extraordinary upbringing. He showed interest in firearms from an early age. He joined the National Rifle Association as a teenager and faithfully read its official magazine along with many right-wing publications that shared his disdain for the federal government. After several long-forgotten mass shootings, in 1994 the Senate passed a bill outlawing assault weapons, enraging gun supporters, including McVeigh. Toobin concludes that this launched him "on a full-time mission to go on the offensive against the Federal government," and he provides an exhaustive but fascinating chronicle of a year when McVeigh—assisted by several like-minded but undependable friends—scrabbled for money, chose his target, and, following instructions in right-wing literature, assembled his bomb. Having neglected to plan his escape, he was quickly arrested, and Toobin delivers an equally gripping account of the prosecution, defense, trial, media coverage, and five years of appeals before his execution. McVeigh freely admitted planting the bomb, never expressed remorse for 168 deaths (including the children at the building's day care center), and never stopped proclaiming that he was striking a blow for freedom. Few readers will doubt that he was a fanatic but, sadly, not a loner. During his lifetime, he moved among a dangerous fringe of gun lovers, government haters, and White supremacists. Since then, these groups have grown steadily more popular and entered the mainstream. Many serve in Congress and state legislatures; one, Toobin adds, became president. Consequently, McVeigh's story is "not just a glimpse of the past but also a warning about the future." An authoritative, disheartening, depressingly but relevant page-turner.

THUNDER IN THE PARK EVENT: AUGUST 10 AT 6PM

Ready to join the beat? Participating in a drum circle is an exciting way to share the rhythm of joy and make music with others in a relaxed environment. Unlike traditional drumming which is about performance and technique, drumming circles are about creating a soundscape that anyone can contribute to.

The health benefits of drumming are increasingly being researched and documented. Scientific studies have shown that group drumming on a regular basis can:

- Boost the immune system
- Reduce stress
- Synchronize the left and right brain hemispheres
- Release or Invite present moment awareness

Group drumming is being used in a wide variety of health care settings and is an excellent tool for supporting wellness in individuals and communities. Rich Schuller, from Jamestown Thunder Drum, is ready to lead us in an introductory community drumming program that everyone can participate in whether you have prior drumming experience or not. A limited number of drums will be provided and you can call the library to reserve one. This program is hosted by the Ellington Farman Library and is funded through the Falconer Geographic Community Fund through the Chautauqua Region Community foundation. Come join us in August and get into the rhythm!

JULY DISPLAY CASE ARTIST: KAREN GLOSSER

Fine Art Photographer

"I am so fortunate to have found both here in Western New York state. As an artist and fine art nature photographer residing in Chautauqua County, I have had the great fortune of spending endless hours exploring our region's silent woodlands and wild waters. I enter a grove of towering, old growth forest, or I set foot upon the shore of one of our precious, treasured lakes, and my soul becomes quiet. I know I am home. Camera in hand, I sit for awhile before lifting the lens.

I listen, touch, smell, and sometimes taste, as well as see

The dappled, leaf-filtered sunlight, silently touching the forest floor...

The damp, earthy smell of fallen leaves as a squirrel dashes by, and up a tree...

The sweet, clear sunshine on my face as my bare toes are buried in the warming sands of the summer beach.

Often, it can be the frigid, wild winds that whip across my beloved Lake Erie, lifting the waves to spectacular, sculptural heights.

Only then do I begin to shoot, creating images that express my experience and sense of place, while capturing the emotion of the moment with the intent to bring the viewer along on a journey into the beauty and wonder of our natural world. "

COMING THIS SUMMER! JULY 26 @ 1PM

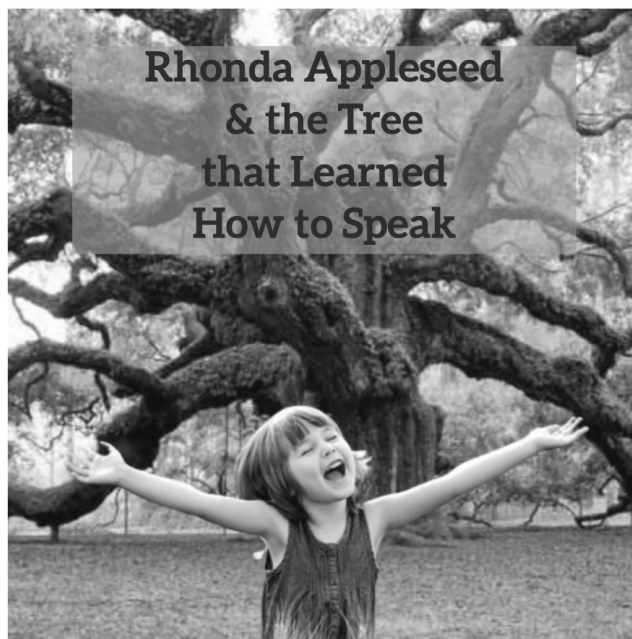

TRAVELING LANTERN THEATRE COMPANY
PRESENTS; Rhonda Appleseed & the Tree that Learned How to Speak

We're pleased to welcome back this entertaining and educational live theatre performance to be part of our Summer children's programming schedule. The Traveling Lantern Company visited our library a few years ago and presented a wonderful Christmas holiday program for the whole family with the story of Ebenezer Scrooge. Thanks to a grant from the Falconer Region Community Fund at the Chautauqua Region Community Foundation we are able to welcome them back with "Rhonda Appleseed & The Tree that Learned How to Speak" on Wednesday July 26th at 1pm. This family event is for all ages and no ticket reservations are needed.

Rhonda is a descendant of Johnny Appleseed, and everyone calls her Ronnie. When she learns about her great great uncle's story, she grows fascinated and then proud. Ronnie decides that she wants to follow in his footsteps. She decides she will protect nature and all the creatures on our planet from climate change. But how? She takes a journey to visit one of the beautiful, kind, wise old apple trees that Johnny planted so long ago to ask how she can help. The tree teaches her that her voice is needed to bring people together to do the right thing.

Come join us this summer in our air conditioned Community Room and bring the whole family to enjoy this live performance!

CRAFT PROGRAM FOR JUNIORS

All children ages 9 and up are invited to come to the library and make a beaded craft with Sue Livermore on Saturday July 15th from 10:30-11:30am. Everyone will go home with a beaded fish of their own. There will be wire and wire cutting involved so please make sure you are able to handle a wire cutter and threading of small beads. Registration is required as we have a limited class size. Call the library to register by July 11th to reserve your place.

ST. BONAVENTURE ART MOBILE COMING IN JULY

The QCA Artmobile will be visiting our library as a kick-off to our Summer Children's Programming on Tuesday July 11 from 1-2pm. The Regina A. Quick Center's Artmobile provides traveling art outreach programs to six neighboring counties in New York and Pennsylvania, with visits to requesting nonprofit organizations serving all ages and art levels. All children are invited to come to the library and participate in a variety of fun art activities led by students from St. Bonaventure.

This event is provided free to the community through our partnership with the Regina A Quick Center for the Arts and St. Bonaventure University.
